POETRY.

A SERENADE

The full moon is throwing Its light on the sea, And silvers the lily
That droops by the lea:
The woodland is silent,

The meek dove's at rest— Come, timid one, come To thy fond lover's breast ! The blue bell is swinging Its head to the breeze, And dew drops hang heavy

On blossoms and trees o longer the sweet rose Is closed from the sight, But blooms in the shadow And stillness of night.

There's beauty above; Come, timid one, come
To the home of thy love—
To the boat that is floating, And rocks in the gleam

Its course on the stream. I hear thee, I see thee-

Thy red lip is breathing
Fond words that have blest—
Thy form in its beauty To mine I have prest :

Thy fairy hand trembles. Thy melting eye flashes
Consent—then away!
Away—for my swift boat
Still rocks in the gleam Of stars that are lighting

LONDON POLICE.

A Japhet in Real Life. - Extraordinary and Mys terious Case. A gentleman, about 28 years of age, who, from his appearance and manner, had evidently associated with persons of rank, came before the magistrate, Mr Bennett, in company with Mr Flower, of the firm of Alderman Harmer & Co., to solicit advice under the following most extraordinary and mysterious circumstances :- It appeared from the applicant's statement that shortly after the French Revolution of 1792, his father, who was a nobleman of that country, was obliged with his lady to emigrate to England, where he continued to reside for several years. Having at length made his peace with Napoleon, he returned to Paris, but he was obliged to leave his wife here, some of her near relatives having given great offence to Bonaparte, The most ardent attachment existed between his parents. and his father used to take every opportunity to visit her secretly; and while she was resident in the British metropolis she gave birth to applicant and a daughter, but their existence was kept a profound secret, for this reason—that it should not be known her husband this reason—that it should not be known her husband had quitted France, as by having done so he had rendered himself liable to be beheaded or shot. At the age of seven he was taken from his mother (whom he had not since seen) to a school at Chelsea, and thence to one at Putney, where he remained a year and a half. He was thence removed to the house of a well known the was thence removed there for the years.

At that period, from some cause or other, a proposition was made to apprentice him to a trade; but the Reverend Gentleman, suspecting that he was highly connected by birth, declared that he would adopt him and bring him up, rather than allow him to be degraded. Through his determined opposition the scheme was abandoned and he was sent to a public school, from which he was eventually taken by the clergyman, who remeved him to a college at Oxford, where he took his degrees. His removal to Oxford was quite unknown to his noble relatives; but as soon as they became aware of the circumstance, every expense was lavished upon him, through the hands of Messrs Hoare, the bankers, by order of a Peer of this realm, (Lord —— and his Lady.) In 1826 applicant purchased a commission in the British army, and held it till 1832, when he sold out, with a determination to devote his whole attention to discover to whom he was indebted for his birth, and the reason he was debarred from a communication with them. After the utmost perseverance, he ascertained, principally through a quarrel amongst his family, that his mother is now residing in Paris, that his father is dead, and that two sisters, who and his Lady.) In 1826 applicant purchased a Paris, that his father is dead, and that two sisters, who | Caps, &c. were, he believes, born before his parents took refuge here, had married two of the French Nobility, one of

Of his sister, who was born in London, he could gain no tidings further than that she is at present alive, and her being kent from him preved more heavily on his and just give a little bit of a look at them. her being kept from him preyed more heavily on his mind than any thing else, especially when he had been given to understand, and had every reason to believe, that she was as harshly dealt with as himself. To his brothers-in-law he had lately made himself known by proceedings against them in the Courts of France; but they pretended never to have heard of him before, and, still wishing to keep the matter secret, they had offered him a princely fortune to remain in the dark respecting his family. These terms he having indignantly rejected, his allowance from the Peer alluded to was totally stopped, and he thought the magistrate could assist him by granting him summonses against certain Noble persons, to compel them to produce documents to strengthen the foundation of his claim to patrimony in France, and, above all, to obtain an account of the disposal of his sister.

Mr Bennett observed that it was one of the most mysterious and remarkable cases he had ever heard of; and Mr Flower said he would take upon himself to speak to the truth of the statement, adding that a vile conspiracy existed to keep the applicant from inheriting his father's property.

Mr Bennett said he could not see any ground to justify him (Mr Bennett) in interfering, and the only course that the applicant could adopt was that which Mr Flower recommended, namely, indictment for conspiracy; and at the same time the actions in the French Courts of Law for the recovery of his rights might be pur-

17th, for the double purpose of celebrating their anniversary, and receiving a Standard, presented to the Company by Mr Joseph Shackford. After the ceremony of the presentation, the Company repaired to Blake's Hotel and sat down to an elegant collation, at the invitation of Licut Gay. They also partook of refreshments, in the afternoon, at the Sun Tavern, by invitation of Mr Charles Evans, a member of the corps.

At the request, and in behalf of Mr Joseph Shackford, I present this Standard to the Washington Light Infantry, as a token of the high estimation in which he holds that company. It bears the arms of the State, which you are bound goo protect. If you should be called to action, let this be your guide; rally around it with a determination to maintain the principles of him whose name you bear, and for which our fathers fought - Liberty or Death.

It is with the greatest pleasure that I receive this mark of respect to the Washington Light Infantry, and avail myself of this occasion to assure Mr Shackford of the respect and warm regard of this Company. This Standard, I perceive, bears the arms of this Commonwealth, and in order to insure peace, in dependence, and union, it becomes every good citizen to be a faithful promoter of its laws. Nothing seems to have afforded more general satisfaction and advantage to society, than having the Hygeian Medicine prescribed and prepared by a regular and practical physician, and one who may at all times be consulted or appended to. either by post or otherwise, on the subject of its operation and disease. This also is the more appreciated in consequence of the number of different medicines which are daily advertised inder various pretences in the name of "Hy getan" and "trigi

The directions which accompany every package of this Do mestic Medicine, are exceedingly plain and particular,—the proper dose and management of the Pills being carefully given under the head of each disorder separately. Those who keep this medicine by them, especially country families, find that nothing is more economical or better adapted for family use, and being tree from mercury or any hurtful property, they may always be resorted to with perfect safety. Neither is it too much to state with strict r gard to truth, that thousands are indebted to this medicine for the preservation of life and breath

The Female Anti-Slavery Meeting, was not held yesterday afternoon, agreeably to notice. Before the appointed time, Washington Street, from the City Hall to Cornhill, was full of people, a majority of whom, probably, had assembled out of curiosity, while the balance were unquestionably there for the purpose of applying Lynch law to Thompson or Garrison, if they could be found. A few females, black and white, had previously secured an entrance into the hall, and when the crowd became clamorous, they were passed out with perfect safety by the Mayor, the displeasure of the crowd being expressed only by hisses. The sign sent of the English Government." of the " Anti Slavery Society" was next demanded, taken down and split in pieces. Repeated calls were our Declaration of Independence? then made for Garrison, when Dep. Sheriff Parkman appeared at one of the windows, and assured the crowd upon his honor, that he had searched every room in the building, and that Garrison was not to be found, and requested them, in the name of the Mayor, to disperse; with which request a majority of the crowd complied. During the heat of the excitement Mr Ela, the printer of Zions Herald, (and we believe an abolitionist,) was seized as he came out of the hall. and pretty severely handled, as was another individual who was so unfortunate as to bear a personal resemblance to Thompson-neither of them, however, were seriously injured.

Garrison succeeded in making his escape about 15 minutes before Sheriff Parkman made his search, by being let down by a rope from one of the back windows of the building, and took refuge in a carpenter's shop in Wilson's Lane, where he was found secreted under a bench, seized, and brought into State street with a rope about his body, and borne along by a few resolute men to the Mayor's office in the City Hall, where he was delivered into the custody of that officer. The crowd again assembled around the City Hall, but by the extraordinary exertions of the Mayor, backed by the civil force, Garrison was brought down, placed in a carriage, and carried to the Leverett Street Jail for this vagabond evangelist of cut-throats, we will quote, safe keeping. It was with the greatest difficulty that the carriage was got through the crowd, and although surrounded by constables, several determined attempts

When Garrison was brought out from the carpenter's shop, we understand he was very much frightened, and begged hard for mercy-and we noticed that when the carriage started with him from City Hall, he appeared excessively agitated. Had he not been rescued from the crowd, he would undoubtedly have been tarred and feathered, or punished in some such way, but we do not think his life would have been taken. When in State street, an unsuccessful effort was made to take him to the pump, for the purpose of pumping on him, with which, perhaps, he would have been liberated .-It is fortunate, however, for him, and for the credit of the city, that he escaped as he did.

A considerable number of persons assembled in groups near the scene of the riot, and in front of the office of the Liberator, in the evening-but they seemed, generally, to be brought there by curiosity, and up to the present time of writing, (10 o'clock) have shown no disposition to disturb the public peace.

The carriage in which Garrison was taken from City Hall, did not drive directly to the jail, and its arrival there was anticipated by a portion of the crowd, who pressed upon the officers so closely that it was with delivery." great difficulty they could get him into prison. It was said last evening that an armed guard had been stationed to protect the jail, and that a large crowd had already gathered around it-but we think there was no possible necessity for such a defensive measure.

We believe we truly represent public opinion, when we say we regret that the events of yesterday ever transpired. We deplore the madness of the abolitionists and condemn their measures; but still more do we deplore the fact, that the city of Boston was yesterday a scene of violence and commotion. In heaven's name, let us stand by the laws, as they exist, and if they are inadequate to the crisis, let others be enacted to supply the deficiency-but let us not, under any circumstances or provocation, permit a spirit of anarchy and misrule to gain a foothold here-let us protect ourselves against ourselves, if we may so speak, and indignantly frown down the first outbreakings of popular fury, and thus crush a spirit which in its progress knows no reason or control, and which, if permitted to grow unchecked. will destroy, one by one, and in rapid succession, all those political, moral and social privileges which combine to make us a free and happy people.

The Law which has been passed by the French Chambers, and approved by the King, restricting the liberty of the press, has produced great excitement, and seems likely to lead to serious consequences. Many newspapers have been discontinued in anticipation; but the National avows its determination to continue to advocate republicanism, let the consequences be what they may. It would not be surprising if Louis Phillippe should soon be called upon to follow Charles X. into retirement. The French people begin to learn that when they changed kings, they only gilded the chains they meant to break-fetters of iron gall not more deeply than fetters of gold.

The Address of the Worcester Democratic Convention, which we published last week, has been every where received with favor and admiration. We are happy to see that its character is duly appreciated, and we have no doubt it will do much good among those who are willing to read the truth, and be guided by its precepts. The period of our election is rapidly approaching, and it behoves the friends of democracy to be up and doing in the good cause.

The British Government, and Abolition of Slavery.-What time and history have joined, sophistry cannot put asunder. As it was in the beginning, it is now, and ever will be, as long as the British Government exists; its intention from first to last, ever since we have been an independent nation, has been to sever the Union. Its constant motto has been, " Divide and Conquer ;" and its constant means, the abolition of slavery-instigating the slaves to cut the throats of Myers said, in defence, that he assented entirely to what Mr Ballou said, but the other witness had not told Mr Ballou was powerful in wealth and friends, while he had no friend but his mother; that he had been oppressed by Mr Ballou when he had him in his power, and that he had corrupted his mind; that he had been excluded from the ministry more from animosity than on account of his loose conduct. He has, said he, abused me very much, and after corrupting my mind, ruined me. If he had treated me like a gentleman, I should have treated him well; but instead of that he has insinuated many unpleasant things against me. I related his conduct towards me to Judge Thacher, and he advised me to have nothing to do with Mr Ballou."

Judge Thacher certainly gave Myers the best possible advice, and the day is far distant when he will cease to regret that he did not follow it. Murder .- In the Cincinnati Post of Saturday week, are given the details of a horrible scene, dyeing the donestic hearth with blood, which occurred in that city on the same morning. It appears that a certain John Cowen, a cabinet maker, of that place, having had a quarrel with his wife, became enraged, and seizing an xe, struck her a blow on the head, which was likely to prove immediately fatal, and then, seeing the effect of this blow on his wife, the wretch assaulted his two children weeping at her side, and despatched them both with the same bloody instrument, and then fled. The children were aged about four and two years. The murderer was pursued without loss of time, and overtaken about three miles from the city,-brought back, and committed to jail, there to await his trial for the dreadful deed. When taken, he said he had expected to suffer death for the murder of his wife, and deprived his children of life, that they might not be disgraced by

A Squirrel Hunt .- A fine sporting match was decided at Russell's, in South Deerfield, on Friday night. There were about thirty on a side, principally from Deerfield and Whately; about two days' time allowed for procuring the game. Seventeen hundred heads of all kinds, sorts and sizes, but principally of squirrels, were counted at the time of meeting: about nine hundred of which, probably, were shot for the occasion. One of the parties resorted to a coup de main, allowable by the immemorial custom of squirrel hunts, by which they succeeded in abstracting a large quantity of game previously shot and stored up by their adversaries, and thus secured the victory for themselves .-Greenfield Mercury.

The New England Crown Glass being purer in color than any other Glass, is preferable for Stores, as it does not tinge the rays of light as they pass through it, and therefore white goods particularly appear to advantage; and it is peculiarly useful for Factories, as some minutes of light may be gained morning and evening, in consequence of the absence of color in this glass. The price of second quality is reduced from the rates heretofore asked.

Those who wish to contract for this Glass are requested to specify New England Crown Glass, as much imposition

FOSTER'S WRITING ESTABLISHMENT, AND PRIVATE COMMMERCIAL SCHOOL, 116 WASHINGTON STREET.

OUNG GENTLEMEN are qualified, at this institution, for Commercial situations in a superior and expeditious manner. Penmanship and Double Entry Book Keeping are taught on an improved plan, by which a competant knowledge may be acquired in one third of the time usually devoted to those branches. The terms are for qualifying the learner for the business of the Counting-house, and no regard is paid to the number of lessons. Pupils may attend till their improvement is satisfactory, without extra charge. This is, therefore. Cand C. Treasurer

1. The learner attains a mastery of the mechanical movements of the fingers, hand and arm, and this muscular facility enables him to write with ease and expedition.

2. The letters are executed by the simultaneous movement

2. The letters are executed by the simultaneous movement of the fingers and thumb, in conjunction with that of the hand or fore arm—the arm resting lightly near the elbow,—while the third and fourth fingers are used as a moveable support.

3. All slow and formal practice is abandoned, and a series of exercises substituted, which impart a free, flowing command of the pen, and a uniform slope and regularity to the letters.

4. The exercises are performed rapidly, from the first, and, in addition to great freedom, the habit of writing straight without lines, is acquired. #OURNEYMEN CABINET MAKERS WANT#P ED.—Two or three Journeymen Cabinet Makers of steady

RECOMMENDATIONS. RECOMMENDATIONS.

Having been unde acquainted with the medical qualities and witnessed the effects of '10 Thelps' Arcanon,' I feel much confidence in saying it is a preparation of medicine greatly superior to any thing of the kind, in curing those chronic diseases for which it is intended, and recommend it to invalids in preference to any other article whatever.

SAMUEL L. MITCHELL, M. D.

New York, March 25, 1830 New York, March 25, 1830.

My knowledge of the properties and operation of the "Arcanum of Dr Phelps," justify me in saying that it is far superior to any depurative symp with which I am acquainted. In the most obstinate and ambiguous deseases, it displays effects peculiarly surprising. In those affections that resist the skill of the physician, such as Rheomatism, Syphilis, Scrofula, Ulcerations, and Diseases of the Skin, &c., I would recommend it as worthy of great confidence.

Extract of a letter from Dr Jones, a highly respectable physician, dated Baton Rogue. Louisiana, Dec. 28, 1833.—
The Arcanum had two powerful competitors, Swaim's Panacca, and Potter's Catholicon, which have been for years in circulation in this place. As far as I have had an opportunity of ascertaining its virtues, I believe the Arcanum to be superior to any article of the kind, yet offered to the public. I prescribed it in a case of Irritable Ulcer of three years standing, situated on the Malleolus Extrenus—the individual thus afflicted was much emaciated and debilitated,—after one week's attendance, I put him upon the Arcanum, following the directions three bottles nearly effected a cure of the ulcer and boddly health.

tions three bottles nearly effected a cure of the dicer and boddity health.

I prescribed it in several Mercurial and Syphilitic Affections, where it proved salutary. I am at this time trying the Arcanum on an individual, who has been laboring under Ulcerous affections of one of his legs, for fifteen years,—he has taken I bottle only, and it has produced that effect, he is sanguine in the belief, it will effect a permanent cure.

MY Befollowing paragraph, setting forth the value and importance of these Life Preservers, is from a late number of the New York Journal of Commerce. The expense of procuring a full supply of the article for every steamboat, would be comparatively inconsiderable, and ought not to enter into the calculation, when taking measures for adding to the safety of passengers, and for the preservation of human life. We learn that any number of these "Life Preservers" may be obtained at short notice of Messrs F. Hutchings & Co, in this city.

The subscriber would inform the first from the Pastace Office of the Worcester and Providence Rail Road and the surface of the Worcester and Providence Rail Road and the surface of the work of the pastace of the work of t LIFE PRESERVERS—As it is impossible for steamers to carry small boats enough to secure the lives of their passengers in case of disaster, they ought to be furnished with a sufficient quantity of the India Rubber Life Preservers. The expense wouln be small, and the security against the appalling scenes which may otherwise occur, would be will nigh complete.—The preserver is nothing more nor less than a double girth to be buckled round the body, which can be put on and inflated in les than a minute, and being on, the individual cannot sink, but would float with his head and shoulders above water for months. If five hundred persons were to be cast on Long Island Sound or Iludson River, each wito a Life Preserver on they would be saved. But what would be their condition it obliged to betake themselves to these waters without such protection, especially if a disaster should happen in the night? We think the owners of steamboats owe it to their passengers to be provided with a sufficient number of Life Preservers aways on hand, to furnish each passenger with one.

The LIFE PRESERVER may be obtained, in any quantity, at the Roxbury India Rubber Factory, where this article was first invented. Warehouse No 109 State st, Boston.

THE subscriber has on hand a good assortment of the Swelled Beam Windlass Bedsteads, which, for comfort and convenience is undoubtedly the best article yet invented; its chief peculiarity is that of the Swelled Beam, the effect of which is to produce a crowning, and elastic sacking, and effectually provides against its saging. They are easily set up or taken down, and may be saved in case of fire as easily as any other piece of furnitare, and from its mode of construction less liable to harbor insects than any ether kind; but above all its advantages is the ease and comfort obtained from the sacking, by means of its being made and kept elastic by means of the Swelled Beam, (the form of which is exhibited in the above cut.)
